50-Mile-An-Hour Winds Whip Fire Through California City; 14 Hurt

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP)—Fire fanned by a 50-mile-an-hour wind raced through a sparsely-settled residential district in the foothills of this city's north edge today, forcing hundreds of residents to flee.

Firemen said they thought they had the blaze under con-trol after a four-hour fight, but in the confusion could not give an accurate estimate of the number of homes destroyed.

It had varied during the early norning from "dozens" to "hundreds" to six, police said. Renew Talk Of The fire department reported 14 men injured as a result of the flames and the high wind. Most

Six Powers Throw Big Problem Into Council

LAKE SUCCESS (AP)-Britain, the United States and four other countries formally demanded today that the United Nations' Security Council call for the immediate withdrawal of Chinese Communist forces from Korea.

A resolution was circulated to council members shortly before a council meeting scheduled for this afternoon. The proposal also reaffirmed previous U.N. appeals for all countries to refrain from aiding the North Korean Communists.

In addition to Britain and the United States, other sponsors of the proposal were France, Cuba, Norway and Ecuador. With the expected support of Nationalist China, the resolution was virtually assured the necessary seven-vote majority.

It was generally believed, however, that Russia would use the veto and throw the whole lissue over to the veto-free Concert Assembly, and the General Assembly under the newly-adopted plan for meeting aggression.

The council has invited Red

China to send a representative here to explain why Chinese Communist troops are in Korea, but the United States and some other delegates were anxious to go ahead with debate without waiting for the Peiping representative to arrive.

Russia already has served notice that she will fight all consideration of the question until the Chinese Communists been brought before the council and given a chance to answer the charges made against them by Gen. Mac-Arthur, U.N. commander in Korea, and the U.S. delegation.

SERIES ON 'OTHER SIDE OF THE ISLAND' BEGINS

A new series of articles entitled "The Other Side of the Island" starts in the Times' Magazine today, and will be repeated on successive Saturdays.

The articles deal with the little-known west coast of Vancouver Island and are west coast of vancouver island and are based on a recent research and fact-finding junket by Cecil Maiden, well-known author and movie producer. In quest of material for a forthcoming book, Mr. Maiden visited remote bays and inlets for a fascinating close-up of this land of magnificent scenery and sturdy settlers.

The Times has received exclusive pre-publication rights to text and photographs taken by Mr. Maiden on his tour. The first article of the series appears on page 3 of the magazine

By NANCY HODGES

I KNOW I AM heading for such deep water that I shall probably find myself out of my depth, but I can't help rejoicing at the news that Danish scientists are planning to spend the next two years plumbing the deeps of the ocean to find out what goes on down there.

Not that I am particularly interested in ocean depths, but what has intrigued me is that no less an authority on serious subjects than the U.S. National Geographic Society has posed to that expedition a most pertinent question of burning interest to Victoria. It is: "What if they bring up a sea-serpent?"

SUPERSEDED BY SAUCERS

THAT QUERY WAS inspired by the society's admitted regret that the sea-serpent has been displaced by the flying saucer in the I-Saw-It-With-My-Own-Eyes League. That mournful admission I can only take as another indication that Victoria is sadly overlooked in the society's scheme of things.

For it only needs a mere passing acquaintance with this part of the world to know that flying saucers don't stand a chance as long as Caddy is around. The flying saucers could assume odder shapes than tea kettles or rolling pins and float around in their thousands without arousing half the excitement in some of our residents—and visitors—as our old friend with the horse's neck.

SNAKES IN THE GRASS

IT MAY BE, of course, that our particular pseudo-scientists have got such a crick in the back sitting around on wet rocks and beaches waiting for Cadborosaurus to turn up that they won't risk a crick in their neck craning skyward to watch for flying saucers.

When they are not watching and waiting hopefully for our own special sea-serpent they are watching balefully for human snakes in the grass—like me—who come along and dare to challenge their eyesight by questioning the existence of the phenomenon. Even dignified visiting jurists from afar have been affronted by my crude and cruel comments on the varying length, varying head-shape and varying tale-pieces of "Caddy."

AND NOT EVEN the fact that most scientists, according to the N.G.S., also think sea-serpent stories are "the bunk,"

the N.G.S., also think sea-serpent stories are "the bunk," because none has ever been caught, alive or dead, excuses doubting Thomases like me in the eye of the earnest members of the I.Saw-It-With-My-Own-Eyes League.

In that connection, the National Geographic Society finds that the sea-serpent legend is not new. As long ago as 1817 a strange creature was seen frolicking about the harbor of Gloucester, Mass. It was described by the many who saw it as a serpent with a head as large as a horse. In 1905, two. British scientists were cruising in Brazilian waters when up popped a turtle-like head and neck about eight feet long.

BRITISH AND GERMAN

A STRANGE MONSTER of similar description was reported A STRANGE MONSTER of similar description was reported in 1941 by a British armed merchant ship on blockade duty in the North Sea. It fired at the creature, which sank. But several days later two German submarines in the same area reported seeing what could have been the same character. They said it was blown high in the air when they torpedoed a passing ship.

a passing ship. With all that varying—and international—evidence to go with all that varying—and international—evidence to go on, it may be that the Danish scientists will come up with something in the way of sea-serpents when they probe the depths of the sea. I hope so, for it may finally settle the doubts about Cadborosaurus. Or at least tell us whether the company of the Okanagan and the Caddy is any relation to Ogopogo of the Okanagan and the Loch Ness monster, or is merely a commuter between these widespread parts—and what its head really looks like.

King, Queen Enjoy Visits to Lodge

Support The United Nations

TOMORROW THROUGHOUT THE free world decent-living people will be casting their minds back to a day in November, 1918, when the First Great War came to an end. Those same people, doubtless, are now wondering what lessons have been learned. All of us hoped that on that day so long ago the death knell to human slaughter on an international scale had come to an end.

Back in 1919 the first League of Nations, with high hopes and great resolve, began to operate. Four ears later defeated Germany signed the Locarno Pact. This was the understanding under which France and the Second Reich were to bury the hatchet. Strange as it may seem at this stage in history, Italy and Great Britain were to assume the role of referee in such matters of conflict as right develop between the two traditional continental European

It will be recalled that the late Sir Austen Chamberlain was instrumenta in bringing together on the shores of the Swiss Lake the late Gustav Stresemann and Aristide Briand in the hope that the ancient feud might be ended for all time. It was a noble gesture on the part of the then British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. But the ideal he had in mind and to which he devoted all the ingenuity at his command lasted only for a short time.

Then came the Kellogg-Briand Pact of 1928, to which nearly 30 nations appended their signatures. This was, to quote Mr. Kellogg's dictum, the abolition of war as an "instrument of national policy." Three years later—as the world well knowsdent which revealed the impotency of the first League of Nations. Japan invaded Manchuria. All the League of Nations did about Japan's aggression at that period was to give the warlords of Tokyo a "slap on the wrist."

What has hampened since then is a

a "slap on the wrist."

What has happened since then is a matter of history. There is little point at this stage to recall or emphasize the results of the antecedents of that weak-kneed attitude of the proponents of the first real attempt by peace-loving nations to establish machinery calculated to preserve the peace of the world. It is nevertheless fitting to point out, that on this 1950 celebration of Armistice Day—the fifth after the end of World War Two—the average man and woman on the fifth after the end of world war.

which they seem to be driving for their own self aggrandizement.

Some people will say that the individ-ual point of view means nothing. This is sheer defeatism. There is a job to be done by every Canadian, every Canadian who cherishes his or her belief in the fundamental concepts of liberty. And the time to do that job is now. The situation in Korea, Tibet, and the threat of totalitarianism in various parts of the world is a challenge to intelligent and

Mr. Justice Macfarlane quite rightly takes exception to any suggestion that the bench turns a blind eye to certain aspects of cases under the Matrimonial

On the other hand, it would be naive to suggest that all is as it seems in some divorce proceedings. Patently the law is not framed to meet the needs of the day. It defeats the principles of justice when its very rigidity casts the suspicion of perjury on witnesses who testify in many cases in that category.

It is not our purpose, to advocate a relaxation of the law in a way to cheapen the marriage sacrament. It is obvious, however, that some amendment is needed to release partners honorably from a contract that is a failure.

TONIGHT WILL MARK THE DEADline for Christmas parcels to be malled to Europe. There still remains a week before the final date for similar packages destined to Britain. It is unnecessary to say that the ensuing days will be busy ones for the people who must handle those gifts before they start their journey. On their behalf we appeal to our citizens not to wait until next Friday night before they take their parcels to the Post Office.

For Those Who Gave Their Sight In War, St. Dunstan's Carries On

THE NAME of St. Dunstan's is known throughout the Commonwealth for its work among war-blinded men and women. Its activities are centred on Britain, but its facilities have be offered to ex-service men and won en of both world wars from many parts of the world. One of the latest entrants to St. Dunstan's training centre in England, for instance (a victim of blindness resulting from war service in Italy), came from the Union of South Africa. TELEPHONE WORK

Perhaps you have heard the name of Sir Ian Fraser, himself blind, who yet manages, while being a member of Parliament, to act also as chairman of St. Dunstan's. I have before me as I write his own report on St. Dunstan's progress during the past year. It tells how blind switchboard operators, employed widely by private firms in Lonployed widely by private firms in London, only manipulate with speed and accuracy their complicated system of plugs, switches and twisted cords, but actually take down long messages over the telephone on shorthand machines; it tells, too, how blind persons can now play such games as whist and bridge with special playing cards and even take notes of what people say by making dots with a pointer on a small piece of cardnotes which they themselves can read back, of course. back, of course.

These things may be already known you. But I doubt if you will have and of the blind man with both hands amputated who recently opened a restaurant for selling fried fish and chipped potatoes. He washes, peels and chips the potatoes ready for frying by turning the pedals of a stationary bicycle adapted for him by the St. Dunstan's experimental department.

St. Dunstan's trains the war-blinded for many occupations. Blind masseurs have been on duty at Wimbledon during the lawn tennis championships to give treatment to injured players; other men ing lathes, drills, presses, circular saws and all manner of semi-automatic ma-chines in industry.

RIFLE SHOOTING But the strangest thing I learned from Sir Ian Fraser's report was that one of the most popular pastimes among blind trainees in Britain is rifle shooting —by hearing. At the St. Dunstan's training centre at Ovingdean in Sussex, blind marksmen now have their own rifle range and often hold shooting matches with local rifle clubs. Even the existence with local rifle clubs. Even the existence of a St. Dunstan's section of the Institute of Magicians, with members who give public and private exhibitions of conjuring, seems to me less spectacular.

It is, indeed, staggering the extent to which the handicap of blindness has been overcome through the work of societies such as St. Dunstan's. Yet however well trained the blind may be however well trained the blind may be they are still, inevitably, deprived of many of the pleasures of life.

AFTER a month of antiseptic immer-sion at Ottawa and Washington I might set down here some cosmic con-clusions, all of them wrong, but who is interested in trivia of that sort? After simi-

It is said, and is doubtless true (though significant) that you can look out the train window and see when you cross the U.S. border by the sudden appearances of wealth, the better houses, the fatter haves the multitude of industhe fatter barns, the multitude of indus-trial smokestacks. But you don't have to look out the window and after a weekend in Toronto you are too tired to look at anything. You know you have crossed the border by the taste of the

AS A Canadian I find this a source of deep national humiliation. Why is it, I ask myself, that a Canadian people who could conquer a wilderness and build a nation against the joint conspiracy of nature, economics and politics cannot make a good cup of coffee? And why is it that the Americans, who can make everything else, including the best coffee, cannot make a cup of tea?

Pursuing this fascinating international

Pursuing this fascinating international mystery further, one is led, agreeably enough at first, into the realm of food. The Canadian, as I have affirmed, is not a cook and this saves his stomach from excessive wear and tear. His food, like his character, is simple and solid and thus, while lacking the higher joys of the table, he enjoys good digestion.

THE American, on the other hand, is so superb a cook and creates such wondrous and exotic dishes that he is almost inevitably a dyspeptic. The stom-ach ulcer, indeed, is the mark of the successful American and if he can die of a cardiac condition in his forties he knows that his life has been well spent.

The American, in short, cooks too well for his health. Now at first this well for his health. Now at tirst this is not apparent. For the first week a Canadian ravens through the bill of fare. He sees the American take a piece of ordinary sole and, with a mixture of this and that, convert it into a feast for the gods, whereas the housewives of Vic-toria, B.C., can take the best sole in the world and think of nothing better than to fry it and present it on the table as a sole. He sees the chefs of Washington take the inferior, soft-shell crab of Chesa-peake Bay and make it almost as good as the crabs of Sooke, while none of our housewives has ever improved the Sooke crabs once they are out of the water.

T COULD go on with this list indefinitely covering the whole gamut of human diet from soup to nuts but it only makes me hungry. The point is simply that the Americans are better cooks.

This I have long known but now I am to add a larger conclusion-namely that the Americans are better cooks h cause, unhappily, they have to be. The American palate, at least in the great cities, is so jaded that it must be aroused by strong flavors. In our innocent Ca nadian mouths roast beef has a power ful native flavor but the American must cover it with hot sauce to burn through the layers of insulation left by cocktails and cigarette smoke.

I have no doubt that, beyond the end of the pavement, there are Americans who are teetotalers and non-smokers and have only one wife in a lifetime, but in the seething metropolis everything is done to blunt the sense of taste, of smell and of feeling until a cook must be violent and reckless to create a perceptible

THE clear foodline which runs along the 49th parallel much more vividly that the invisible political boundary is no accident. It reflects the differing characters of the two peoples who, in the foolish imagination of foreigners, are aldinner in Toronto one day and in New York the next can possibly imagine that Canadians and Americans are different only in their politics. The greyness, solidity and lack of imagination in the Canadian character is never more clearly proclaimed than on the menu. The excite ment, energy, nervous tension and imagi-native quality of the American, his deep soul-hunger which he vainly tries to sat-isfy with speed, noise and perpetual movement, send him ravening after strong and highly-flavored victuals.

THE diet experts tell us that we are what we eat. It would be more accurate perhaps to say that we eat what we are. The Canadian eats his plain fare and is content because he is a plain man. The American eats his riotous agglomerations of sauce and seasoning because he is a complicated man with a disturbed mind and, inevitably, a disturbed

AFTER a week of lobster Newburg and shrimps Creole I long for a piece of B.C. salmon with a sprig of parsley from my garden and I am willing to confess (in confidence) that my wife, who knows nothing about cooking, is the best cook in the world, next, of course, to my mother, who cooks as Michelangelo painted, and her art has the decided advantage over his in that you can understand, eat and digest it.

Manifestly, we do not want a bridge of sighs and the vision and foresight which we are endowed, should make it apparent to all that four lanes repre-sents the only solution to the situation sents the only solution to the with which we are faced.

If a high level bridge is feasible, it too, would seem to warrant the earnest consideration of all concerned, bearing in mind the future development of the upper reaches of the harbor and the ever-present desirability of the projected canal between Portage Inlet and Esquimalt harbor.

Much water has gone past Point Ellice since the canal—a playground and commercial facility that should not be ignored—was first mooted, but in the building of the bridge it should be re-membered, as a factor intruding upon the public conscience.

It was on a string; he scolded it for coming out of his pocket and tucked it in again. I went on with my stew. Since we're getting down to personal things I may add I was awakened at 4.30 in pitch dark this morning by a strange banging, I ud and yet muffled. It turned out to be a dozen or more citizens doing their laundry in a small park outside my window. They stuff it all into a sort of pillow case, soak it in water, and then whale the case against a rock or board until HAPPINESS

I fumbled about with his question and said it was hard to answer and that happiness was a relative sort of word.
"Exactly," he replied with a twinkle.
"And so it is with my people. If you mean are they going to go Communist because they haven't enough of the world's goods. No. They are not. If you mean are they grumbling because they are poorer than the rich people. No. No, there is not what you call a ground tide here or at any rate not. No. No, there is not what you call a ground tide here, or at any rate not a heavy one. They are beginning to hear and see more of outside life, however, and the more they see the more they realize what they haven't got. Still, they are happy in their way. Their lives are simple. I think people find a way of being happy, don't you? It is so dull not being happy."

LIVE AND LET LIVE

Having staggered at the conditions and the prospects of the poor and illiter-ate, we westerners would stagger again to realize they were smiling most of the time, they were getting on with the business of living. They seem helped by their child-like faith in strange religions, by their adoration of little toys or harm less monkeys. And as for worshipping the poisonous snakes and not keeping them away or not trying to kill other sible for them to rise and kill all those animals? Was not their "live and let live" theory the only one open to them in this unconquered country?

We couldn't tell, but we wondered.

And we wondered not with the distaste and distrust that, say, the Egyptian provokes around Cairo. We wondered with affection and just a glimmering of understanding that made India's foreign policy, for example, clearer. Somehow uldn't imagine ourselves being a recruiting officer in one of the mud hut settlements asking for men to leave for Yugoslavia to quell a Communist uprising.

time of the day or night.

All that anyone living in the 3erlin area has to do to get this service is dial a'certain number. It works just as well on a call from the Russian zone as it does from the American, British or ench zones.

The hook-up which handles this telephone news service is simple. All in-coming calls are switched to a ci cuit connected with a transcription machine which plays from a recording tape. The tape recording is changed frequently throughout the day, as new bulletins come in. It operates a good bit like the U.S. telephone companies' weather re-porting services.

Originally, however, this telephone news service was evolved from a special service which the Berlin German telephone companies have been giving to musicians. A lot of people in Germany are talented musically. They like to tune up the fiddle or the zither of an evening after work, or on Sundays. To get the correct pitch, all they have to do is dial a certain number and listen. The tele-phone company plays back a perfect E pitch and away they go.

THE HOME GARDEN

Choosing Fruit Trees Matter For Discussion

The choosing of fruit trees for the home garden requires the consideration of both man and wife, and their ideas may be

In my estimation the home-maker is the one to decide the kind and type of fruit to be grown. The wise homemaker knows some-thing of food values, and re-alizes that fresh fruit, both raw and cooked, will add much to her family's well being. She Beastall is able to estimate the amounts needed, and thus eliminate that tiresome overabundance, (and the occasional blank spot), which occurs all too frequently.

Personally, I prefer that the many berries take care of the summer months, with one good sweet cherry for variety, and summer months, with one good sweet cherry for variety, and Nater, plums for dessert and jammaking. Early varieties of apples seem to me unnecessary, and the struggles with apricots and peaches could be better applied to a mid-season dessert apple and a good winter keeper.
Many will disagree with my, ideas, so we'll see what Jack has to say. After the pipers had saluted the dead mascot with the lament,

"Flowers of the Forest," Col. Mosedale proposed the toast to I feel that while keeping qualities are important in home-grown fruit, so also is the type of tree which should be planted.

large crop, but who wants to wait years for it to bear, and then risk his neck harvesting fruit or climbing shaky ladders to prune in a February gale. To say nothing of trying to spray a twenty-foot tree with the usual home garden type of equipment.

Another angle is cross-pollina tion. It is important with cher-ries and pears, and a great bene-fit to apples. A sweet and a sour cherry need a third variety as a pollinator; that means three trees. Apply that to pears and apples, and add a plum, and the city lot soon becomes an orchard and nothing else.

Dwarf trees, where possible, are the answer, and while the lady of the house may dream of supplying the fruit needs of the family from the home garden she must also remember that the fence-lines are not so very far apart.

What's the difference between a Can of Peas and a Moving Job?

You're right, there's all the difference in the world. With canned peas you can try all the brands there are on the store shelves until you find one that you like. But with moving it's very different, the chances are you'll only have to move once or twice during your life, consequently you won't be able to "try them all." Instead, however, why not be guided by the many others who have found in Heaney's a means of moving that's second to none. On Moving Day don't attempt to "try them all" . . . just call Heaney's and be sure that you have the best.

SPORT WEEK

As Marshal Pilsudski used to say, this is the time of year for soils. That's especially true in the sports world, where nothing sappens between Saturdays but horse shows, wrestling matches, happens between Saturdays but horse shows, wrestling matches, and invitation dice-shooting meets.

Each week, to fill the gap, the stately Associated Press and incandescent United Press find out, to their own surprise, which football team is the best in the country. It is done by polling the stuffing out of the nation's sports editors. That takes care of say, Tuesday, On Wednesday, the most valuable baseball player of 1950 is named, quite openly. On Monday or Thursday, I forget which, the best college lineman of the week is selected. He immediately goes down in history, selected. He immediately goes down in history, without leaving a trace.

What with one thing and another, sports editors are polled within an inch of their lives. The last inch is customarily reserved for Lardner's Poll, which makes up in fruitlessness for what it lacks in results. Frankly, I have heard from only two sports editors since the polling season began. One wanted to borrow money. The other wanted money paid back.

The Annual Polls

Nonetheless, in a very short time we may expect to know the answers to the following questions (polls apply to 1950, except those marked by an asterik, which indicates 1944):

1—Who was the year's outstanding N.Y. Yankee manager?

2—Which golfer did most for tennis? 3—Who was the first-base coach of the year?

-Name a college lineman. 5—What two Texas sisters who turned professional had the rettiest knees? (10 points are counted for first place, eight for econd, six for third, and so on.)

6—What athlete made the greatest comeback? (Allowance for mileage should be made here. An athlete coming back to Cleveland from Darwin, Australia, for instance, should receive more credit if he started west and crossed Asia, Europe, and the Atlantic than if he came back by way of the Pacific and San

7—Can a good pro football team beat a good college team salaries being equal?
8—Can a good horse beat a good jockey?
9—Name the horse of the year, outside racing.
10—Name the race of the year, outside horses.

11—Who was the year's outstanding world's welterweight champion named Sugar? 12—Who threw the overalls in Mrs. Murphy's chowder?

The Murphy Brothers

Speaking of Murphy, in a recent poll conducted among book-makers, New York City Police Commissioner Thomas F. Murphy was voted the best commissioner New York has had since the last one. This tribute is similar to many paid in his own field to Happy Chandler, Commissioner of Baseball, and reminds us of the connection between Commissioner Murphy and baseball. The commissioner is Johnny Murphy's brother.

Johnny Murphy, as you probably know, was not only a fine relief pitcher in his own right, but he played an important part in the career of a man named Gomez-Murphy. In the seventh inning, as soon as the third line drive rang out like a rifle shot, Lefty Gomez, the Yankee southpaw, would stick his glove into his hip pocket and walk to the dugout. Simultaneously, Murphy, his second section, would start in from the bull pen on track 9.

"Til be up in the big leagues as long as Murphy's arm holds out," Gomez used to say, and his forecast was almost exactly right.

Double Personalities

Another double personality, named Reynolds-Pag , heiped win the pennant for the Yanks in 1949. Brooklyn had a split organism named Higbe-Casey. A few years ago, a Giant pitcher named Ace Adams wired the training camp: "Will report for duty tomorrow ready to relieve Mungo in the sixth." A poll last week certified the high worth of relief pitching when Jim Konstanty, the sole support of six strong young Phillie fast-ballers, was voted the most valuable player in the National League.

Such things are in the blood. That's why Commissions Murphy relieves cops, if only of their duties,

PREPARED STATEMENT

Young handled his own case defence. He faced the jury bravely and unflinchingly. It was a lengthy epistle the prepared statement read by Young. It dealt with many aspects of the case. The directors were charged with "lacking sportsmanship" in calling a meeting at which his resigna-tion was requested without he (Young) being notified. He called their decision "A Big called their decision "A Big Brave Act" and referred to the matter as "utterly contemptible." He pointed out that it was he who had instigated the formation of the United Football Club as a limited company and that it was he and director Ted Carey who were instrumental in obtaining Victoria a franchise in the Coast League this season.

Young also said: "If you think my stepping down from the president's position will bring harmony, you are wrong. You are only passing control of the club from the directors back Canucks.

We're not attempting to cut in on trade secrets but Cole nan will definitely do a column on Rebel; but after listening to Rebel and Jim recount a few incidents of the past, and quite a past it must have been, we can't help but feel that ould do quite a column on Jim.

The one we like best from Rebel's repertoire on Jim, and we had to dig this one out of a long list of Rebel's favorite varns, happened when Jim was a University School boy, and f Rebel is correct, Jim was a second cousin to Peck's Bad

This particular incident occurred when Rebel was in the business of renting cars. Jim had long had a desire to drive a big plush-looking Hudson that adorned the premises of the Government Street lot where Rebel toiled his eight long hours every day. But no dice; he didn't have a license.

However, one day, by fair means or foul, Jim acquired the necessary authority and grabbing the old No. 10 Burnside-Mount Tolmie rattler he headed for town.

Regular Report Received

"I want to rent that Hudson," Jim informed Rebel. This was one of those lush jobs that drew the admiring stares of passers by and Rebel wasn't too sure whether he should let it go, so he checked with the boss. "Coleman! Sure let him have it," was the reply. And Rebel sadly shaking his head signed over his pride and joy.

Rebel hardly had time to get his feet up on the office desk when the first report came in. "That car of yours went by here doing 50," the voice said. No sooner had he replaced the receiver on the hook than the bell jangled again. aleek job of yours went past my place doing 60" was the informative remark. "Thanks," meekly replied Rebel. This went on for some time with the speed increasing with each frenzied call until finally after the final salvo—a report that the company's grandiose Phaeton had been seen doing 80— Rebel with trembling fingers slid the receiver on the hook and prepared himself for the worst,

Winnipeg Will Win It'

It didn't happen. The next thing Rebel knew was that the car was back and in one piece and an excited voice was shricking: "Gee, that's some boat, Rebel; had it up to 83."

Well, Jim is still flying, though not as low as he used to. Now its strictly business for the fellow last seen heading up Pandora Street with Rebel at the wheel this time of another plush job. Rebel apparently doesn't want a repeat performance.

Jim came out west for the express purpose of covering the grid final between Winnipeg and Edmonton. He's ready to back up his prediction that Winnipeg will win the Grey Cup though in his heart-and his heart is full for an ex-sports writer like himself-Annis Stukus, coach of the Eskimos-he would like to see "Big Stuke" arrive back in Toronto with the western champions.

His invitation to attend the Grey Cup game will-have to be declined but Jim says the Canadian final is now the biggest single sports attraction in the Dominion. "And Winnipeg will

Fourth Place Aim Of Eager United

If Tommy Restell's Victoria United soccer club maintains its improved style of play, and with a little more aid from Dame Fortune, a tie for fourth place in the Coast Soccer League standings will be their lot after Saturday's Remembrance Day fixture with St. Andrews of Vancouver, currently holding down fourth place.

of its healing power.

The way to health

By FRANK S. MORLEY are the Ten Commandments rubbish? Or are they the law of God? How many of us know what they are? How many know where to find them in the Bible? I wish a Gallup Poll would go to work. How many of us believe them to be still valid?

A writer recently ridiculed the second and tenth as irrelevant. Now the second has to do with the worship of migase and the tenth with covetousness, Surely this is astonishing. There is abundant worship of images in our day . . . Our age has no greater sin than covetousness. How would you arrange the Commandments if you placed them in order of importance? I would put covet-ousness second. To covet means to envy, to desire that which belong to someone else. The covet ous person is never contented. If he has a good salary, he gets sour the moment he hears of someone who earns more. Covetousness is the source of adultery, lying, cheating, and stealing . . . The great secret of life is to

NO REST FOR MANY

The Commandment regarding the Sabbath Day is derided by contemporary society. It was not many years ago in Ortario that the law against playing baseball on Sunday was enforced. Children were brought up with the rule that Sunday was to be occupied in reading religious books or going for quiet walks. Perhaps it was too narrow. Certainly such narrowness was better than our "wide-open" Sundays.

Sunday according to the Com-mandment had three clear purposes-to provide an opportunity to worship God and to obtain physical rest, while it should also serve as a "family day." The only part usually observed is the "rest," as many use it for sleeping, especially if they have been out late Saturday hight, while for most it is a day of recreation.

No wonder we have an increase in mental troubles. People who have no time for meditation and spiritual regeneration must go mad . . . When the Pharisees asked Jesus what was the first and greatest Commandment, He replied, "Thou shalt love the Lord they God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy mind." Love God, then do as you like," becomes a safe guide such a man. We cannot demonstrate the existence of God, but there are signposts to God in nature, in history and in conscience. There is also the witness of our greatest men. . . A knowledge of God, however, only comes through experience. Raphael's frescoes in the Vatican describe the "Philosophical School" with no face looking up. In the "Theological School" all faces

VATICAN CITY (Reuter)—A small group of the Roman Catholic Church's foremost monks and priests, met in private here Thursday to plan a more militant attack on modern problems and a better distribution of wealth accumulated over centuries.

1. To galvanize religious orders into greater activity in the world, particularly through teaching and social work.

2. To streamline the whole organization of nearly 1,000 men's and women's orders by a gradual federation of the smaller orders with the greater. November 10, 1950 (12)— There have been a number of program changes in the past week, and if you've not already noted them, we'll outline them for you now.

MUSIC FROM SWITZERLAND

SWITZERLAND
Usually heard 8.15 to 8.30
on Tuesday and Thursday evenings has been switched to a half-hour program Sunday evenings from 7.30 to 8 o'clock. The popular NAME
IT AND ITS YOURS contest will continue as usual test will continue as usual

WAYNE KING
Formerly heard at 7.30 on Sunday evenings, has been switched to Tuesday evenings at the same time.
This will make it possible for those who were unable to hear it, due to other commitments, to hear it regularly. By all means, one of the most popular of CKDA's programs. Wayne
King, Franklyn MacCormick and vocalists appear personally on the show. WAYNE KING personally on the show.

CIVIC ROUND TABLE

This long-awaited program made its debut on CKDA Wednesday night at 9.30. As is always the case with a new program, certain technical difficulties cropped up, although they may have appeared un-noticeable to listeners, and will be ironed out by next broadcast. Thanks to Mayor George, Alderman McTav-ish, Alderman Diggon, Alderman (Mrs.) Christie and Reeves Joseph Casey of Saanich and Bert Thomas of Esquimalt for their fine work. Listeners are re-minded to send their particular questions to CIVIC ROUND TABLE, CKDA, Victoria . . . and to have them in the mail the Mon-day previous to broadcast. Dowell's Cartage and Storage present this public service program.

TEL-OPINION F. W. Francis Limited introduced the second new program to hit the airprogram to hit the air-waves this week on CKDA. At 8.15, Monday thru Fri-day, a new program of interviews, made possible by telephone, is aired. Hai Yerxa is on the questioning end, and accepts calls from persons replying to his Question of the Evening. The price of milk was the subject of the first broad-cast, and caused considercast, and caused consider able interest and comment

NAME IT, AND IT'S YOURS! The clues last week were: 1, There are two of us; 2, We're behind glass; 3, We're lovely to look at. The we re lovely to look at. The prize was a set of pictures. One lady in her entry said . . . "A believe the answer is, A PAIR OF EYES." What a disagreeable thought!

Singers From Paris." They, and their friendly ingenuous musical director, the Abbe Fernand Maillet completely captivated a large audience Thursday night. The Royal Theatre echoed with spontaneous "ahs" as the Little Singers, changing from navy jersies and shorts, appeared to sing the sacred part of the program, in simple white albs with pattern set in their many tours all over the world: First, secular music and folk sons of France; second, sacred music and to con clude, some folk and other songs of the land they are visiting.

There is none of your soprano piping about this choir. The tone is round, full and of remarkable vitality. The soprano section is crystal-clear and vibrant, the altos are velvety and the presence in the background of the dozen young men, adds the firmness and third-dimension of bass and tenor to balance and bass and tenor to balance and broaden the whole effect.

They sing with enthusiasm tempered by training and en-riched by the loving musicianship of their director, whose entirely unconventional beat coaxes forth brilliant rhythmic results and thrilling effects of color. The choir as a whole is absolute master of the difficult art of breathing and clear diction. The program is unaccompanied and the pitch is faultless.

And she also monopolized Dan Reagan for whom, she averred openly, she had "fallen in a big way." She nicknamed him Handsome Dan. and Reagan, after one embarrassed glance at Ede, handled the situation with surprising aplomb.

"This world," Reagan almost growled. "It's nuts."

She sat up, conscious of Reagan's big body, trembling; of a queer regretful look in the eyes that stared at her out of shadow. And conscious, too, of something else. A vague indefinite sound, a regretted her tone. Reagan was leaning forward in his chair.

What The Young Geese Saw

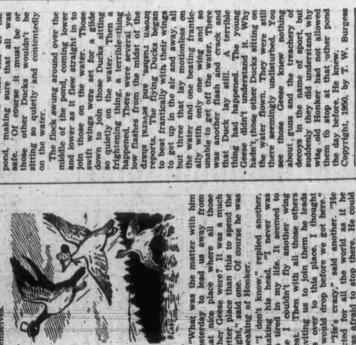

THERE WAS rebellion in the flock of Honker the Goose. It wasn't to open rebellion and it wasn't by all the block. It was just among the young Geese making their first long journey out in the Great World on the way to the Sunny South to spend the winter.

The day before they had made a long flight without stopping for food or rest. Just as the Slack had before they had honked a big point water. They had honked an invitation to join them and one had flown to meet them and one had allown to meet them and one they were near the feeding and resting place. As they drew near the had about spending the might there and had about spending the might they week had fallen that they reached another pond and rested for the mess had fallen that they reached another pond and rested for the mess had fallen that they reach flyths toward them They could see brown rushes along after dark.

The ay before they had made to see where a before addn't understand much cheeven on the water. They day had honked and them and once more they were near the feeding and resting place. As they drew near the pond, it was long after dark and they saw a flock of Ducks flying low some distance ahead of them may from a mother food and rested for the greenly they were they were near the reduit say flying low some distance ahead of them they was on the water there and presently they were they was on the water there and presently they were they was on the water there and presently they were they was on the water there and presently they were they ware they are desirned to the pond they saw of the upper end of they was on the water there and presently they were they was on the water there and presently they was on the water there and presently they were they was on the water there and presently they were they was on the water there and presently they were they was on the water there and presently they were they was on the water there and presently they were they was on the water there and presently they was on the water there and presently they was on the before didn't understand much better what they were.

So the day passed. Once more it was late afternoon and once more a pond gleamed in the distance ahead. Once more they were trace and hungry and hoped that they were near the feeding and resting place. As they drew near the pond they saw a flock of Ducks flying low some distance ahead of them. They could see brown rushes along the shore at the upper end of the pond. Another flock of Ducks was on the water there and presently they heard the quacking calls from among these to the flock flying toward them. The latter had been flying low over the water, but now rose high and circled around that end of the pond, making sure that all was safe. Of course it must be or those other Ducks wouldn't be sitting so quietly and contentedly

The next morning as they fed before starting on the day's flight the young Geese talked among themselves.

"What was the matter with him yesterday to lead us away from that nice place where all those other Geese were? It was a much hight," said one. Of course he was speaking of Honker.

"I don't know," replied another, anaking his head. "I never was so tired in my life. It seemed to me I couldn't fly another wing beat. Then with all those others inviting us to join them he leads us over to this place. I thought I would drop before we got here." "He's creazy," said another. "He acted for all the world as it he was afraid to stop there. He could see for himself that there was no danger or those other Geese wouldn't have been swimming about there and hiviting us to join them. It doesn't make sense. Anyone could see that it was perfectly said; the does a thing like that again I'm going to drop out and again I'm going to drop out and sense."

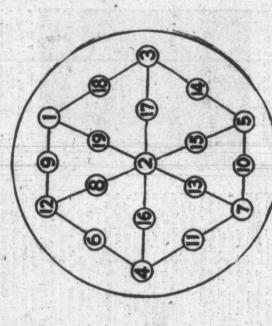

Lourith.

As soon as they had breakfasted Honker gave the signal to start the day's flight and they were on their way again almost cloud high, watching the Great. World unroll beneath them, forest and meadow and pond and lake and farm and village and once a city which the young Geese, seeing one for the first time, didn't understand at all. For that matter the older ones who had flown above cities many times had flown above cities many times

Columbus knew there was land ahead, he contends. Dulmo had found and explored land from 39 degrees north, the latitude of Baltmore, all the way to Patagonia at the tip of South America. To make his own discoveries valid. Columbus had to stay north of 39 degrees. Therefore he falsely recorded Cuba at 42 degrees N. while he knew all the time he was at 21 degrees N.

There actually was a Portuguese explorer named Dulmo. Records show he received letters of patent from the Portuguese crown for a voyage of discovery in 1487. The date set for wedghing anchor was March 1. But beyond that, Portuguese history says absolutely nothing about Captain Dulmo.

King John of Portugal kept the discovery a permanent secret, Prof. Davies explains, because of the feverish competition between Fortugal and Spain for a passage to the East Indies.

ALL OVER AGAIN CONTROVERSY STARTS

But Christopher Columbus had a avother. Bartholomew Columbus, who was a cartographer to King Ohm. From Bartholomew, the Amiral of the Ocean Sea got prelie information of Dulmo's discovates, as any Frof. Davies.

Armed with this advance knowledge, Columbus set out. He sailed straight west from the Canary state, as south of the Azories, where the trade winds blew from

To phevent his uneasy sallors from mutinying, Columbus kept two logs. In his private journal he would record the day's run as 34 leagues, but he would tell his crew if had only been 17 leagues.

Both were false. The private figure was much too high. Prof. Davies argues that Columbus had to windicate the 42 degrees lattitude goal while actually going straight west on lattitude 28 degrees N. The figure he gave the crew was too low, for her had promised his men they would find land within 750

Side Of The Island Other

By CECIL MAIDEN

I have long wanted, as only an outsider can want, to explore and set down on paper something of the West Coast of Vancouver Island as it is today. I say "explore" because, to the great majority of Canadians, and even to many who live on its threshold, this country of which I speak is an undiscovered one.

Enquiries that I made in Eastern Canada, and even here, were met with blank, if friendly faces. At the words "West Coast," official heads themselves were apt to develop a negative motion. There was a reluctance to talk. There was a delicate switching of the conversation to Duncan, or Nanaimo or Courtenay.

A few men here in Victoria, however, men whose work is tied to this country of my adventure, could give me facts, and names, and introductions that were to prove invaluable.

Teaching Dartmouth Bible Scholarly Work; Simplifies Ted

THOMAS ALLAN LTD.

The first introduction to any fresh treatment of the Bible generally prompts the query as to whether it brings anything that is original or even new. It can be said of this particular book issue, that it is a rare and extremely useful piece of work well done. It is the Bible in a volume, but with a many-sided treatment which enhances all its touches in our most priceless literary possession.

One of the unique aspects is that it will readily commend itself to all readers of the Sacred Word whether of conservative or radical mold. It is free from hiss and replete with sound scholarship.

It removes needless repetitions, treats redundancies and observative of it gains in elearness and intelligibility. No sensibilities are violated in the proper ar ra in ging of sequence in Bablical resord and narrative is good in itself, and it also forestalls critician by clearing up the causes of much confusion in Bible-reading have a divident in advance. The merging of the Four Gospels is a good illustration of what is here meant. Explanatory settings give illuminating backgrounds by which religious truth can be better understood and therefore better inter-preted.

This is one of these simple donester conances, defly told and peopled with some pleasant characters. They live in the Scottish Borderland country where Mureth, a substantial farm nestling in a quiet valley, houses a childress but happy couple whose lives, if not seriously complicated become more interesting when a nephew in his twentice arrives after five years in the steaming Malayan jungle. Then, Mureth gets plenty of young visitors, many of them girls those mothers have figured Mureth to be good inheritance. Besides a light hearted tenderness, the book has the drama that develops when young hearts are anguished and young minds appear to be making fatefully wrong decisions.

The story would make a successful serial in a woman's magazine.

How would YOU meet the unknown and unfamiliar when you face a crisis in life?

This somewhat stark picture of seven men and such a situation prompts the question and leaves you to answer yourself.

It is a dramatic account of the face that availed the seven U.S. officers flying to a theatre of the Pacific war when they ball out of their crippled transport into an island jungle.

The author (this is his first full-length novel) is a war veteran himself and his harrowing story has an authentic note. Terrible as are the experiences the seven characters undergo it is their spiritual questioning and suffering with which Mr. Statham has chiefly and successfully concerned himself.

One theory advanced in town this ek is that the headline writers, ressing the "Doggiest Town" eme at every opportunity are religners from Vancouver, Tonto, California or Duncan.
They are here and I got this "alght from "B" Ward of the Vets" spital which makes it authentic,

They are out to break down slogans like Follow The Birds, 'A Britain Bat Of England' and 'Beer Like Britain Brews.'
In place of those tested slogans, which have made Victoria famous, they are striving to substitute one with a very doubtful appeal—'Canada's Doggiest City.'
"It's a vicious title to hang onto a city." the hospitalized navy man said.

Others in the ward were of the same opinion but the naval man had the floor as the sun room orator of the session.

He reviewed the whole subject of dogs and why the slogan "Canada's Doggiest City" should be nipped in the bud before it embarasses Victoria further.

"Most people in Victoria don't like dogs." he said.

There was some contradiction but he had his answers pat.

"Accepting the figure of 12,000 as the dog population of Greater Victoria." he said. "that would indicate that approximately only one person in ten owns a dog. The others must dislike them or they would also over doce."

Victoria Discreetly Chided PETER ELIOT Mourning

Next Tuesday we celebrate the birthday of Bonnie Prince Charlie. A couple of months ago anxious crowds congregated outside the gates of Clarence House to await the birth of another child to the popular Royal couple. The gates surrounding the persons of British Royalty have always been the scene of historic occasions. And use of the term "a crowd outside Buckingham Palace"—characteristically enough usually in drizzling rain is as common as the "Paris mob."

There was one notice put up on the gates of Buckingham which was clearly intended to influence the monarchy. The painful weeks of mourning which followed the death of the Royal Consort, Prince Albert, gradually lengtheed into months, into years. The country grew irritated with the Queen, and the sedate delitor of The Times in a leading article, chastised, albeit gently, the "recluse" on the British throne. "The resentment"—writes elector Boiltho in his charming book (The Reign Of Queen Victoria)—

He had gone to Holman Hunt's studio to see a painting of the London crowd. I know that man, he cried, pointing to one of the mass of faces, no bigger—than a ten-cent plece. "I have seen him in the hunting field with Lord Macclestied's hounds." The Prince continued recalling every detail, ending with the man's name. The incident is striking testimony to Hunt's paintings and the Prince's and

Most successful authors insist that theirs is a harrowing craft — in energy expended, and brain-tissue seared, just a step above sand-hogging.

Not so Gerald Kersh, the British novelist, who was in Victoria this week. "Writing is an obsession with me," he confessed. "I love it. If I don't get it out of my system, I'm apt to fall ill."

Documenting this statement is an amazingly prolift output. Although still in his late 30's, the black bearded Kersh has written if complete novels, in addition to movie scripts and radio broadcasts.

Kersh writes in the hard-hitting, James M. Cain-cun-James T. Farrell style. Perhaps best known of his works is "Night and the City," which was written in 1936 and recently was made into a movie starring Richard Widmark.

find mystelf continually on guard against artificiality.

Spending so much of my time in the makebelieve world of the screen — wearing wigs and special makeup in keeping with my various roles—I am especially anxious to look natural during non-working hours.

This doesn't mean I scorn all cosmetic aids.
On the contrary I've learned that certain routines are necessary. If one wishes to preserve such gifts of youth and nature as a clear skin, sparkling eyes and a slim figure.

My first beauty rule is complexion cleanliness.
I always remove all traces of od makeup before I apply new cosmetics. For hurry-up occasions or times when primping facilities are limited, I find it helpful to use a quick cleansing lotion.

For deep-pore cleansing at the end of the day, or for giving my face a fresh, lively look before making up for a special appointment, a complexion brush is excellent. With it use a cold cream soap which works into a rich, non-drying

VICTORIA TIMES

At Victoria High School Wednesday night, the principal and vice-principal took occasion to give slightly different interpretations of the Latin motto which is inscribed above the auditorium stage. It reads 'Palma Non Sine Pulvere."

Principal Harry L. Smith translated it freely as "Reward not without effort." Harry ing it was derived from the chariot races of Rome, said it meant "The out raising dust." Basically they have the same significance.

Critics of the younger generation might question the symbolism. They might say that, apart from vague memories of some of the spectacular scenes in that old moving picture, "Ben Hur," or a more recent sequence in "Samson and Delilah," modern young people have a pretty hazy notion of a chariot race.

THEY MIGHT, if they were cynical enough, go on from that to suggest that the motto, The palm not without raising dust" has little meaning in November, 1950, or that "Re-ward not without effort" is also

In this day and age on this continent, the inclination is frequently to avoid the effort and hope for the reward. And since wishes can be horses if you guess the right answers on the ical science is constantly seeking ways of providing the re-wards without effort. Nobody wants to crank a car nowadays for the reward of a ride. It's effort enough to use an old model with a gear shift.

The chariots of today don't raise any dust as they whip along the blacktop. The picture of lathered horses drawing a two-wheeled cart that thunders over a dirt track is strictly the history books.

THE OLD symbolism of hewers of wood and drawers of water seems to be going into the discard, too. When you can have automatic heat, who wants to cut kindling and shovel coal? When you can turn on a faucet and have hot or cold water, who wants to go to the well with a

Even the village blacksmith. the traditional embodiment of honest toll, is gone from the scene. He's still working, but he's turning out auto springs and doing body repairs now.

It's difficult to preach the virtues of hard work in an age that favors pressing a button. The chariot race image conjured up by the phrase "The palm not without raising dust" seems a bit remote. But, then, it was probably remote when it was coined. Chances are that the felwho wrote it was lolling up the stands, eating peeled in the stands, eating peeled grapes, while the jockeys down below were beating themselves and their nags into a fury as they tried to raise the biggest

Kitchen experts tell me gas and electricity have definite advantages. They say you can set your oven for a certain temperature and pop in your batter when a bell rings. Then, with or without bells, after a certain number of minutes you pull out the pan and you may have a like those in the magazine

That's swell. What happens though, when the student goes home to the family oil or saw-dust burner or wood and coal stove? Does she have to learn all over again, or does she de-mand a gas or electric range? Maybe the oil and conventional

Pro-Rec Makes Great Strides Here Since Organization 15 Years Ago

Pro-Rec, which is a shorter way of saying Provincial Recreation, is no longer just the name of an organization. Schools are beginning to use Pro-Rec in student timetables in place of P.T. (physical training) or P.E. (physical education).

The organization is not new in the city, having celebrated its 15th birthday this year. Men and women of all ages-1,200 to be exact-registered with the Pro-Rec group during October, the first month of operation this season, and the monthly attendance figure was in the neighborhood of 4,000.

The 33 weekly classes are divided as follows: nine junior, 10 women's, 11 men's and three mixed.

LIST ACTIVITIES

Activities for the women include: rhythmic gymnastics, partner passive and bench exer-cises, group and relay games, square and folk dancing, tap and elementary ballet, tumbling, vaulting, swimming, diving, life-saving, bowling and ice skating.

The classes for men include the same events along with fundamental gymnastics, volleyball, basketball, table tennis, weightlifting, springboard tumbling, trampoline tumbling, high bar rings, parallel bars and aerial trapeze work.

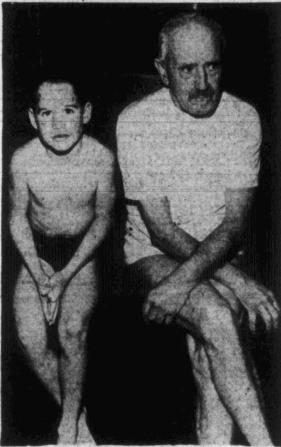

The women's bowling league operates Monday afternoons at Gibson's Bowladrome. Marg Birkenhead of the Pro-Rec staff also has charge of the Canadian National Institute to the Blind bowling league which operates twice a week.

NEW CLASSES A new feature this year is the junior basketball centre located at the Oak Bay High School. Classes are held Monday and Thursday evenings at 7 under the supervision of Dick McQuain.

Special classes in square danc-ing have also been established this year with a class under Mrs. Gwen Joyce on Thursday evenings at 8 at the Crystal Garden classes of the largest school in this region, students are taught to cook by electricity and gas. For part of the year they use

> Other special classes include ice skating each Friday morn-ing in the Memorial Arena at 7, and diving and aerial trapeze work Thursday evenings at 7.30 in the Crystal Garden pool under chief instructor Ed Kelter.

Oldest, Youngest Members

Age is no barrier in Pro-Rec organization. Both youngest and oldest members in city are diving pupils; take weekly lessons at Crystal Pool under Ed Kelter. Youngest is 10-year-old Monty Vanden, 554 Simcoe Street, and his senior, George Hutchins, 78, of 2518 Wark Street.

Model Instructor

Last season, the Pro-Rec display team appeared in 42 public performances including the May 24th parade, numerous charity, ice and water shows and gymnastic events.

Police Differ In Drunken Driving Charge

Direct conflict in police evidence has resulted in another charge of drunken driving being thrown out in city police court. Charge against Albert E. Hull, Helmcken Road, was dismissed after Claude L. Harrison, city prosecutor, had explained his reasons why he did not wish to start proceedings.

Charge against Hull came after he had been involved in a collision last month and was later examined by Dr. E. L. McNiven. ·The prosecutor said it had been brought to his attention that certain officers had seen Hull and claimed he was not intoxicated

Early Autumn Bridal Paths

Like every city in the land, Victoria has its contingent of young girls who choose to make their marriage vows in the months of colored leaves. Some are married in quiet home ceremonies, others in the minister's vestry. But the majority select as the perfect setting, a chapel, a church or a cathedral.

Typical of those in the latter group are the lovely brides on this page today, all of whom were married in traditional church ceremonies surrounded by best of friends and relatives.

New Waterproofing Grease Protects Skating Boots

By PENNY SAVER

Tripping the light fantastic to the Skater's Waltz, these days? Good, that makes two of us . . . and two of us who can do with a thorough greasing! The skates, that is! Originally used for water-proofing loggers' boots or ordinary work boots, the grease serves a pair of skates with every kindness. By the way, before you dash into the cupboard for your pair of white skates, forget it. The waterproofing compound does honors only to dark-leathered boots.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Milk holds such a high place In the diet of the growing child that it may be expected the mother will, at times, overdo its use. During infancy it is the most important food in the diet but by the end of the first year it is a part of the diet, the rest of it being made up of cereals, vegetables, fruits, eggs, meat and on and on.

To continue the use of a nursing bottle after the first year. is one way of over-emphasizing milk and under-emphasizing the other foods the child should have. Milk is then used as a soothing agent and the child drinks more than he would—or should—because this familiar way of taking it offers so much

Mrs. J. F. says her boy got not the habit of sleeping poorly and to help him get back to sleep she offered him milk by

"He is three years old," she writes, "and he takes two botwrites, "and he takes two bot-tles of milk each night. He is still a restless and poor sleeper and in daytime he is so cross and eats poorly. I know he should not have these bottles, but I have a younger child and I give them in self-defense, I have to have some rest." But you aren't getting it. Per-haps the dependence on the bot-rightly.

Since you have begun this, instead of arguing with the child, give him a bottle of milk that is half water, then three-fourth water, so that his system that are the neurishment at does not get the nourishment at

Then, in the morning, he will hungry enough to eat prop-y and get, as do other chilerly and get, as do other erly and get, as do other chil-dren of this age, one cup of milk with each meal, and no more. The more milk a child of this age drinks, the less desire he has for food, so that cutting down on the milk promotes a better appetite and insures a better balanced diet.

Girl Who Describes Herself As Friendless In Her Native Land, Asks For Instructions On How To Remedy Plight, And Do It Fast

Dear Mary Haworth: What does an 18-year-old girl do when she wants some friends? Male or female, it makes no difference to me. All I want is some congenial company, and I want it quick. I am the youngest of a large family, all the children less than 30. In spite of this, I have only one boy friend for whom I'd really give a dime, and absolutely no real girl friends. I am somewhat a case of being a stranger in my native land. It all sounds silly and contradictory and yet it's true—and no fun at all for me.

HAND-KNIT

LONDON (CP)—A white hand-knitted evening gown in traditional Shetland lace stitch attracted most atten-tion at the recent London show, "Wool in Springtime 1951."

Completed in just under three weeks and comprising 500,000 stitches, the charm-ing ballet-skirted gown is draped enchantingly over a crinoline hoop and a froufou of taffeta petticoats. The simple bodice, in a finer lace stitch, is topped by a cape-collar, off-the-shoulder neck-line and the only touch of color is a narrow gold kid waist-belt.

The gown was knitted be-tween daily chores by Mrs. E. N. Reed, a housewife and mother from Sidcup, Kent. Requiring 27 ounces of twoply fingering wool costing f9, the dress is valued at £50.

River Probed For Remains Of Martyrs

MIDLAND, Ont. (BUP)— Archeologists today sifted the silky sands of the Wye River for a strange and awesome treasure—the remains of two martyrs, dead 300 years ago.

Their bones were believed con-tained in a sturdy wooden box, cached in the Wye's banks below historic Martyrs' Shrine at this Georgian Bay city.

Directing the search is Wilfrid Jury, curator of Indian arche-ology at the University of Western Ontario, London. Trained workers dig with him.

The history of the box goes back three centuries. It is believed to contain relics of Jerome Lalemant and Jean de Brebeuf, brothers of the Society of Jesus, who were martyred at St. Ignace, a tiny village near Fort Ste. Marie, March 16 and

MURDERED BY INDIANS

The bones were wrapped in silk, and carried to Christian Island, where Jesuits and Huron converts had moved to defend themselves from the Iroquois.

Later, the martyrs' bones were taken to Quebec and France.
Those of Lalemant were returned to his family while Brebeuf's became venerated relics in Canada and France, but the

Last summer, excavations un-covered the remains of the In-dian chapel, outside the for-stockade. A star-shaped bastion was traced on the southeastern corner of the fort and a secret passage, timbered to prevent its collapse, was discovered.

IN BURIAL GROUND

The passage led from the bas-tion to the river edge, where its mouth was concealed by bushes. The archeologists found what was left of 12 orifice to what was left of 12 coffins in a burial ground beside the India chapel. In two of the coffins mingled with the bones of the dead, beads and rosaries were found.

The chapel site and the burial ground were consecrated 300 years ago. A cross has been erected at what was believed to have been the door of the chapel. Should the long-sought box containing the remains of Lalemant and Brebeuf be found, the relics wik be given a place of honor in the shrine and later will be distributed for religious purposes throughout the Jesuit purposes throughout the Jesuit Order.

N UNBEATABLE P

Rocket Engine and Hydra-Matic Drive

GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

The "76", powered by an improved Big Six Engine, afters Hydra-Matic Drive as optional equipment at extra cost.

First came Hydra-Matic—pioneered by Oldsmobile more than 10 years ago, and acknowledged as the greatest contribution to driving ease in the history of the motor car! Here at last was an engineering achievement that took the work out of driving and put pleasure in its place-a drive that outmoded the clutch pedal entirely, letting you drive without ever shifting a gear.

Then came the revolutionary "Rocket". Soon after Hydra-Matic, Oldsmobile engineers began work on an entirely new engine-one that would be better than any other motor car engine—a power plant especially designed to work with Hydra-Matic Drive, to produce a team that would revolutionize motoring.

And now the team is complete! Together, Hydra-Matic Drive and the "Rocket" engine give you brilliant performance you can't comprehend until you've experienced it! A sense of unbounded power . . . an ease of driving entirely new . . . combined with new economy—for the team makes the utmost of every gallon of gasoline. It's a team that puts Oldsmobile years ahead—and puts Oldsmobile owners years ahead. See your Oldsmobile dealer.

New Gas Strikes Made At Oyen And Campbell

CALGARY—Week by week gas strikes continue to boost Alberta's reserves. Wednesday two more strikes were made. In the Oyen area, 10 miles west of the Saskatchewan boundary Albercan Sun-Sibald No. 1 got a flow of 5,000,000 cubic feet a day from the Bow Island sand Interval 2,439 to 2,450 feet.

The new gas strike is 20 miles southeast of Hudson Bay Park No. 1 fas strike which was the first discovery of 1950.

Imperial Oil has boosted to 700 the number of successful completions in the Redwater field.

Like most other gas strikes the Sibald discovery came unsought and incidental to the main ob-jective, oil in the Devonian.

The well is located on holdings 98,000 acres of original Sun lands. Albercan got a farm-

3,737 to 3,744, respectively. This well was also drilled for oil but the sand formation high and found gas instead. Lower tests gave a small amount of oil and salt water. This well is just under a mile northwest of the Campbell oil producers of Redwater leaseholds.

Now at 3,805 feet the well continues in quest of Devonian oil.

The two wells which Imperial brought in to boost Redwater's total to the 700 mark were Simmons No. 46 and Amelia No. 88.

Imperial has accounted for more than half the Redwater total. of 98,000 acres of original Sun-Oil lands. Albercan got a farm-out for a half interest. Albercan took in Royalite for a half of that, leaving the latter two with 25 per cent interest each in the well all the leases that may be taken.

30-foot wave during a storm

When Elvidge came bobbing

up on a giant wave he was thrown a lifebuoy with a heaving line attached, and was hauled aboard by Doyle and ordinary seaman Jack Adamson,

Elvidge was none the worse for his experience and reported for duty shortly afterward.

The gale, which veteran seamen described as the worst dusting they ever encountered, also damaged boats and sent gear flying. Chaplain Horatio Todd of Ottawa was flung against Athabaskan's guard rail

RCMP May Crack Down

By CANADIAN PRESS

Tim Buck, Canadian Communist leader, denied today that he and fellow members of the Communist Central Committee deal in sabotage, espionage or fifth columns in the armed forces.

Two other Canadians admitted Communist activity. All spoke in reply to charges by T. G. (Gerry) McManus, former member of the Central Committee, in the current issue of Maclean's magazine.

Buck Stewart Smith and Dorise Nielsen are among the persons McManus described as the top 10 Canadian Communists.

Smith said in Toronto that Mc-Manus "means the Labor-Progressive Party when he refers to the Communist Party" but that "nobody knows who the top 10 are . . . I am just chairman of the Toronto committee."

ONCE RED MEMBER

Mrs. Nielsen said in Saskatoon she once was a member of the Communist political bureau but now is not. She knew nothing about McManus' report of Com-munist preparations to wage underground war in Canada in the event of war.

Buck issued a statement in Tormeet in the mainland city Sun-onto saying that McManus, in the day to set a date for calling out magazine article, "confesses: 'No-body (in the central committee) talks, even in the most general terms, about sabotage, espionage or fifth columns inside the armed

"The reason that this is so striking when they balloted in a is quite simple. Such things are not discussed because they do not exist."

R.C.M.P. READY

It was learned in Ottawa that the R.C.M.P. hopes to be ready to launch a swift counter-offensive against Canadian Communists if war should come. McManus' statements caused the mounties no surprise, informed sources said. For years the fedral police force had been preparing for the possibility that the Communists might some day go underground.

The intercity co-ordinating committee will likely pick a day early next week for shutting down the Victoria yards. Vancouver shipyard and Pacific Drydocks Oct. 18, are known to be anxious for their Victoria counterparts to come out quickly so that a united front can be presented to shipyard operations in further negotiations.
